Pigeon rehomed

Found in Clappers Lane, apparently en route to Knole House, and immediately adopted by the team from the website. The new Pigeon will consist of two sides of A4 and be based on fulking.net. It will appear on the first of each month. One side will consist of the calendar/diary of events for that month. We will depend on you to tell us about all the things that need to be included. Telepathy is insufficient. The other side will contain (i) routine Fulking items that pertain to the coming month – church and parish council matters, social committee matters, etc., and (ii) text contributed by readers – letters, rants, pleas, anything legal, constrained only by the available space. Just email it to pigeon.post@fulking.net. All Pigeon Post material will also appear on the website.

Aidan's Pigeon Post

Pigeon Post has come a long way since Nick and Jill Bremer put the idea together quite a few years ago. The biggest leap forward since then has been the contribution from the most recent editor, Aidan Walker. His imagination and artistic ability had made it a village newspaper to be envied by other villages. I, for one, am terribly sorry that an era has passed and that his format has had to be discontinued but I quite understand the reasons. Many thanks, Aidan, for doing us proud.

Harvest Festival & Picnic

October 19th – a traditional Harvest Festival Service at 11.00am will be followed by our ever popular harvest picnic – bundles of harvest/ploughman's food tied up in a knapsack and eaten inside or if fine in our grounds, allowing us to take a little 'time out' and relax and enjoy our surroundings. Picnics (£6.50) should be ordered in advance – phone Chris on 01273-857322 or Jane on 07812-465-559.

St. Andrew's Day Quiz

Advance notice: November 28th -- this is always a popular event and promises to be a fun evening which will be held once again at the Nomad's Pavilion in Clappers Lane. Tickets include a ploughman's supper and sold out quickly last year -- so let us know early if you would like to come. Contact Chris on 01273-857322 or Jane on 07812-465-559 for more details and to enter teams.

A change in the way you call local numbers

Ofcom is making a change to the way people in the Brighton area dial local numbers. From 1st October 2014, you'll need to add the 01273 area code before you call any local number from your home phone (just like you already do with national and other numbers or when you use your mobile). If you have any local numbers stored in your home phone, make sure you change them to include 01273 today. And don't forget to check any other equipment, such as personal or home alarm systems, that might connect to a local number. Check on elderly neighbours too.
